Warm inviting tones and clean design lines highlight the spacious appeal of this condominium unit

Creating more room out of this 4 bedroom condominium unit was the one of the top priorities for the design team from Ideal Design. The homeowners, a married couple with two kids, wanted a spacious and modern home that they could revel in. Taking heed of that, the designers infused the home with a soothing colour palette of white and creamy hues to stretch the space further.

For the living area, they clad the walls in a light beige hue to complement the existing marble flooring. This immediately opened up the space as the off-white shades advocate the flow of natural light. The designers went on to affix a wood-like laminate panel on the wall to host the LCD television set. To provide contrast, two glossy laminate shelving units in white were mounted on the panel to serve as a television console. The designers then created a 'floating' illusion by implanting T5 lighting underneath the feature wall.

The dining area exudes a simplistic appeal with its black dining set. Next to it is a strip of clear mirror which helps bring the impression of a larger space. The bottom half of the mirror is flanked by grey wallpaper and this combo infuses a contemporary feel to the entire space.

The master bedroom received the most extensive overhaul as the designers merged it with another bedroom. The plan was to incorporate a walk-in wardrobe so they hacked away the walls and replaced it with solid plywood planks in laminate finishing. The planks act as a divider to separate the sleeping quarters from the walk-in wardrobe.

The bedroom also hosts a laminate feature wall that is quite similar to the one in the living area. With T5 lighting streaming out from the top and bottom of the feature wall, the warm glow provides the room with a tranquil atmosphere.
