

modern flow

A sense of consistency within the modern theme of this HDB apartment unit has bestowed it with a better flow of space

When the homeowners of this HDB apartment unit decided their home would benefit best from a modern contemporary style, they turned to designer Nick Pang of Ideal Design. After assessing the place, Nick proposed to hack away some boundary walls to open up the space with this 3-room apartment. However, it wasn't approved by HDB so he worked around it by choosing a colour scheme that would bring along a larger impression of space.

Going with red and black for the main colour scheme, he applied the chosen hues on a stylish television console made of laminate and mirrors. This striking colour combination attracts the eye immediately and serves as the main focal point in the living area. The opposite wall is then painted in dark grey. By adding a crystal chandelier to the ceiling, the moody hue is instantly uplifted by the gorgeous light fixture of intricate details. It infuses the living area with a much needed dose of visual drama.

Since the homeowners enjoyed entertaining, Nick thought adding a bar counter would be a nice touch to the living area. Set against the wall, the L-shaped bar counter is swathed in red and black laminate as to keep with the main colour scheme. A nifty overhead cabinet was affixed for easy access to beverages and wine glasses.

Heading to the kitchen, it features the same aesthetically pleasing colour combo of black and red which is applied on the laminate cabinetry. The main attraction of the kitchen however, is the stain- and heat-resistant countertop made of granite.

Nick had something different in mind for the master bedroom. To achieve the look and feel of a resort, he had the walls painted dark bronze and employed mirrors to make the room look bigger. The design is finished with the suspended feature wall made of white laminate and solid plywood which adds to the room's clean-cut appearance.
